The New York World says: The ultimatum has gone forth from the great centre of civilization and fashion, declaring that waterfalls are no more to be worn by the dames of the hout monde. Paris has spoken, and from the rising to the setting of the sun there is general and submissive acquiescence to the immutable and irrevocable decision of the hair dressers and perruquiers of the Rue de Tronchet. The waterfall, or chiquen, mistakenly attributed to the "enly sure" at the artistic genius of the fair-haired Empress of those afflicting complaints the French, was first worn at a grand reception or "married or single." given at Buckingham Palace, the occasion being the return of the Prince of Wales to his ancestral halls from his sojourn in America. The dignified and titled dames of the British aristocracy on that night essayed the attempt to eclipse the acknowledged leader of the fashions in Europe, and they succeeded so well that, but a very abort time after, this new and novel mode of dressing the hair was adopted at the Court of Eugenie, with the proverbial enthusiasm and abandon of the French. In place of the heavy and cumbersome waterfalls, there are three braids of three-ply each, entwined at the back of the head, surmounted by an aureola such as is seen around the beads of the Madonnas of the old masters. The front of the hair is combed back in the Pompadoor style, and what is known as "spit-curls" pendant in the regions of the auricular organs. The effect is very pleasing, and when glistening with gold or diamond powder, under the refulgence of a chandelier at a ball or dinner party. presents a brilliant appearance.

How Animals Cool Off.

Breey observing farmer knows that men and horses are the only animals that have double mesns of refrigeration, and all others have but one. No other beings sweat like men and borses, and therefore cannot cool themselves by perspiring through the skin. This will be found COMMISSION MERCHANTS, true throughout the whole range of comparative anatomy, and applies to the largest as well as the smallest beings. LIQUID

CALL FOR A CIRCULAR DESCRIBING ALL SYMPTOMS:

The symptoms of Catarrh, as they generally appear are at first very slight. Persons find they have a cold that they have frequent attacks, and are more sensitive to the changes of temperature. In this condition, the nose may be dry, or a slight discharge, thin and acrid, afterwards becoming thick and adhesive. As the disease becomes chronic, the discharges are increased in quantity and changed in quality; they are now thick and heavy, and are hawked or coughed off. The secretions are offensive, causing a bad breath; the voice is thick and nasal; the eyes are weak; the sense of the smell is lessened or destroyed; desiness frequently takes place. Another common and important symptom of Catarrh is, that the person is obliged to clear his throat in the morning of a thick or slimy mucus, which has fallen down from the head during the night. When this takes place the persen may be sure that his disease is on its way to the ungs, and should lose no time in arresting it. The above are but few of the many Catarrh symptoms.
